Preface

In 1987, I started teaching my first batch of CSS at Central College, Multan. Professor Abdul Ghani had recently retired from BZU University and was heading the college. He offered me to start the batch. At that time, Professor Badr Deen Hyder and Clement John (Muhammad Ali), who were the most experienced and renowned teachers of the city. I got the opportunity to share the glory with these two. Professor B. D. Hyder had been my mentor. He had put together several exercises for CSS aspirants. I followed the example and when I shifted to Lahore, I made a new comprehensive course for CSS aspirants. The current book is a version of the same course.

The exercises in this course have been put together as comprehensive lists with graded exercises. I have attempted to provide a list of words most frequently asked in vocabulary tests. But, to facilitate the aspirants, and to discourage passive memorization, these lists are followed by various exercises. The exercises in this book can be divided over days and weeks so that aspirants have a clear road map for the exam. Frequent revision and testing will ensure success in all competitive exams. Aspirants of CSS, PMS, PCS and One Paper exams of all Service Commissions & Testing Services will surely benefit from this course. It is for them that this course has been designed. The material in this book comes from several sources, most of which have been lost in several revisions and compilations. The copyright for the original is theirs and theirs only.
